17th Nov Cambridge Celts 4-1 Comberton Crusaders

Man of match – Oliver Aldridge

A bitterly cold day with a biting wind and an excellent game against one of the best sides we have played.

A very even game throughout, the difference being the opposition keeper, who had an outstanding game and will be playing at a higher level should he continue.

To sum it up the Celts manager said a draw would have been a fair result and that we were the best organised side he had seen this season.

We were 2-0 down before Ross Isbister scored a good solo goal and were pressing for the equaliser when they scored two quick goals to seal the game.

At last Oliver Aldridge started to show his true form with an excellent game.
